I. Creative Brief

1. Company Objectives

Vine is an online magazine that gives the latest news in all things wine. Profit is to be gained through ad revenues through official partners and agreements from sponsors wanting to feature their products. These official partners and sponsors will have exclusive ads displayed on the site. Users can register and login to submit their own reviews, comments and experiences on all things related to wine.

2. Project Summary

Vine will be a source of all things wine for wine connoisseurs young and old by providing a clean and user-friendly environment. Users can interact with each other as well as the staff.

Home - Featured review or article with previews and links to other areas of the site. It will feature one ad for a newly released wine from one of the partners or sponsors, Dom Pierre Wine.

About - Content page featuring information about Vine and short biographies of the staff. Contact form will be included. An ad featuring Head brand cheese will be placed here.

Wine of the Week/WOTW - Content page featuring an article about a wine recommended by the staff or a subscribed user. It will include a Top 5 wine listing. It will also include the 5 Worst wines. An ad for Boss wine glasses will be placed here.

Hot Spots - Content page featuring an article for the latest reviewed location of where you can taste wine. There will be separate sections for wineries, restaurants, and clubs. There will be a Top 5 of hottest places to go. There will be an ad for Chez Gaston Restaurant.

Learn - Content page featuring tutorials either submitted by staff or by users. Any articles that help teach the art or help one to perfect the art of wine tasting. Articles may include "How to properly open a wine bottle?" or "What's the difference between red and white wine?" Users and staff can post video tutorials as well. A section for food and entertaining will be included. It will also have a FAQ section and links to other information about wine. Users can have an opportunity to ask a staff member. Staff member responds in an editorial. An ad for a wine tasting class will be featured here. An ad for Club Vino here.

Interviews - Content page featuring articles of interviews of people in the wine business which can include critics, restaurant owners/managers, club owners/managers, wine producers, and celebrities.

Login - Form for registered users to login or a form for new users to register. An ad for placing and ad on Vine will be placed here.

Credits - Thumbnails and photographers' names of used images in the site.

3. Audience

People between ages 21-50 interested in wine and the art of tasting wine.

4. Personas

50-year-old retired US Navy Officer James Stevenson has been an avid wine enthusiast for the past 30 years. He always wants to know what new wines are available on the market. He subscribes to The Vine for reviews on wine and places to taste.

35-year-old wine producer Dom Pierre has recently increased his online sales revenue by 25%. This is because he placed an ad at The Vine. Because of this success, he plans to place ads there in the future and wants to become an official partner or sponsor.

At a recent business dinner at a fancy restaurant, 26-year-old Tim Sanchez was given the privilege of choosing the wine for the table. Embarrassingly enough, Tim did not know a thing about wine and respectfully declined choosing the wine. To save himself from future embarrassment, he looks online to find all the information he can about wine. He comes across TheVine.com and falls in love with its beauty, ease of use, and vast amounts of content for wine rookies such as himself.

5. Design Summary

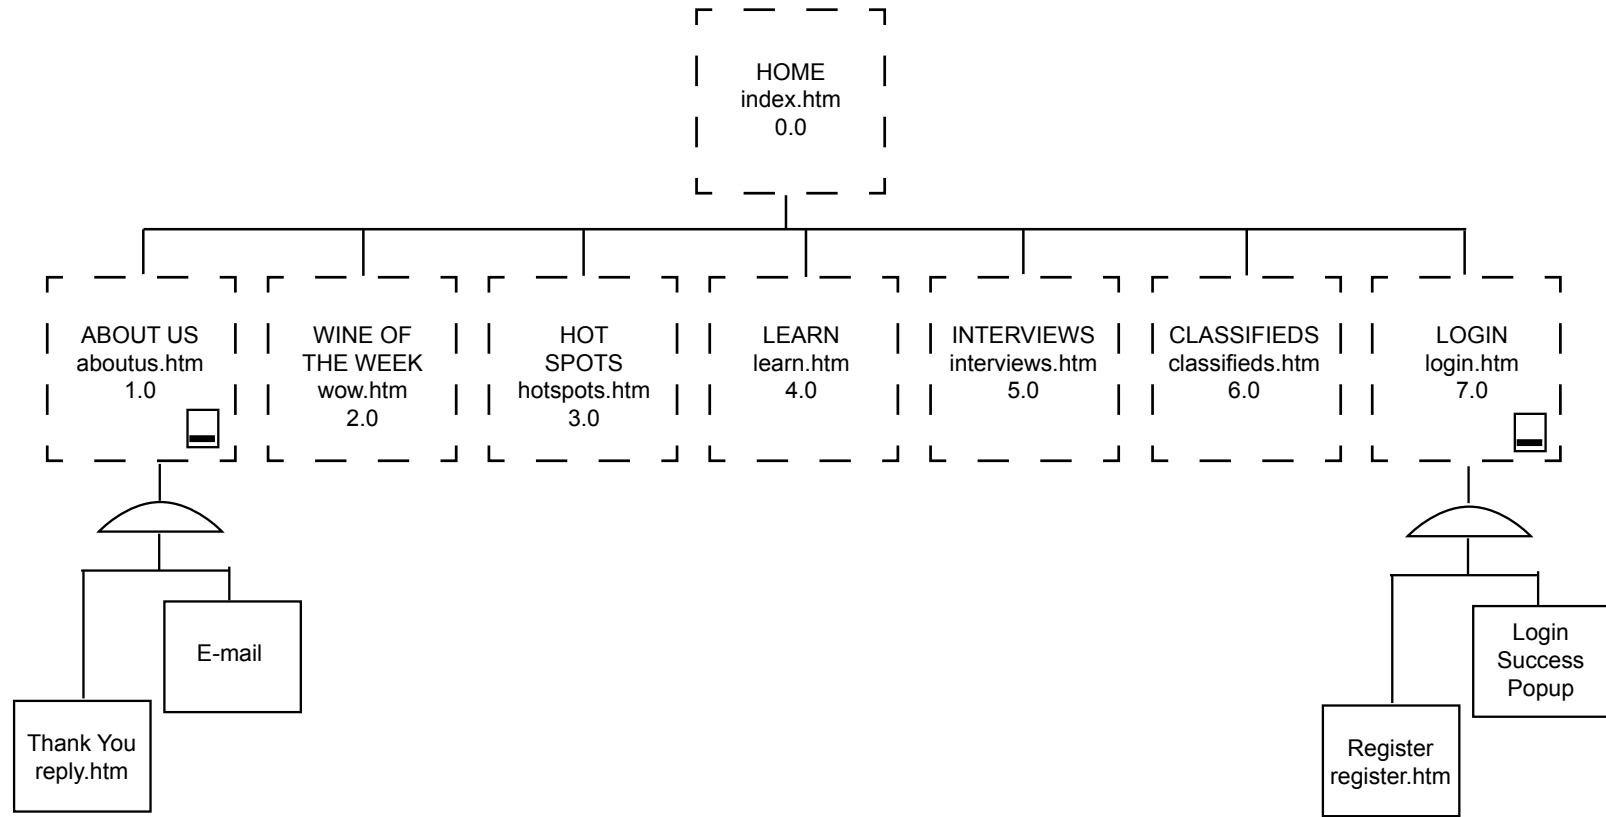

Vine will have a vintage yet modern look. To portray the vintage feel, deep purples and light tan colors will be used. It will look as though one is looking at the label of an old wine bottle. The text on the logo is Vivaldi. It has that unique vine-like quality like those of a grape vine. For the modern look, text will be in black and the font will be arial and ads and banners will be glossy and use Flash.

6. Perception/Tone

Sophisticated/Informative.

V. Evaluation

1. Findings

Banner needs more work. Images need work as well. Specifically, the images shouldn't be too big. Ads need to look more like ads instead of pictures. Overall, it is clearly organized and easy to read. Each page needs to inquire a more distinct uniqueness. Basically, pages should be uniform in design, but somehow not look the same.

2. Methodology

Students majoring in web design were put into groups of five. Each group would try as best as they can to become the target audience. Each person in the group formulates a series of questions or criteria in which the group can use to create one evaluation form to test each site including this one. The evaluation form would be a conglomerate series of important questions or criteria in which we would rate on a scale of 1 to 5. 1 being the worst and 5 being the most outstanding. The groups would examine each site without the designer in the room. The groups would come to a consensus in how to rate each criteria.

4. Conclusion

Many changes will need to be made. The banner will need to be fixed. It needs some minor touches. The text should not be justified. It should be left-aligned. The ads will be revamped to look more like ads and not just plain pictures. Some spacing between objects need to be widened like between the logo and top of page. To make the headers pop out more, a different background color will be used. Anchor tags need to be added in certain areas. Margins on subtitles need to be fixed. More content will be added. Some pages look too similar like the hot spots and wine of the week pages. Overall, the site is coming together well and with these necessary changes, the site will be a success.
